How do you decide a Value?

How do you judge? What is your value judgment?

- What are the values that guide how we typically design systems?
  - In other words, what are the things that we (in the world) tend to value when designing technology?
  - Right now, don't worry about our (enlightened) perspective - what do regular people think?
  - Talk with your neighbor
  - Write down the list of values
1. First vale I would consider is durability.
  2. Then if it's a good inversion, if is going to produce me some money.
  3. I would consider how much the monetary value is going to depreciate with time.
  4. If it would be user friendly for everyone in my family.
  5. How much maintenance is going to need.
